Bonuan Boquig Elementary School this is the school I was assigned to observed. On the first day of my observation I was very excited and a little bit nervous, because I don't know who will be my CT or Cooperating Teacher. But I'll do my best to make them amazed and adjust with their personalities and attitudes. I need to prove that I am firm and flexible in any kind of circumstances.

They gave us a warm welcome on the first day of our observation at Bonuan Boquig Elementary School. We won't waste this chance because it will also provide us insight into how the public school actually operates and what goes on there. They entrusted me to Mrs. Judith Aquino the adviser of the Grade 1 Waling- waling. When I entered their class, I smiled because they also greeted me with a smile. Teacher Judith is a compassionate and dedicated teacher who also coaches the school's baseball team. She was able to successfully juggle being a mother, a teacher, and a coach, which astounded me. Teacher Judith is good at writing, drawing, and creating instructional materials. She also puts a lot of effort into printing out activities for her students. She also stated that she doesn't want to leave Grade 1 students because she can make them dance more children's dances than in higher grades because, of course, they are young men and women. Many of the students in Grade 1 are mean, but some are still know how to listen with their teachers. I've been patient in making this remark because the majority of the kids here are really rude and difficult to understand. Whatever you yell at them or order them to stop, they will continue to act improperly. Since they are in first grade, teacher Judith has a long history of being patient and knowledgeable about her kids. She knows what tactics she will use to make the youngster more accessible.

She uses Models to make the students see and understand what they are talking about. She also uses pictures for objects that are visually visible within the class. She also engages the students by doing some games that are related to their lesson.

For strong student-teacher interactions, teachers must teach and Guide all the students with love. They also need to have a lot of patience and understanding, because students look to them for inspiration to preach and pursue their dreams. The observation we did helps me to developed my attitude .That leads me to believe that becoming unaccustomed to real-world circumstances is simple. On the last day of my observation at Bonuan Boquig Elementary school it became unforgettable since some of the students in grade 1 waling waling had given letters for me even. I'm very grateful because they try their best for me. Even though I was only in their classroom for three days, they also gave me drawings, which I enjoyed and they also treated me as their teacher. I was hoping that they would all recognize me when we next met.

I learned during the three days of my observation that it was true that every learner was unique. There are those who learn quickly and some are slow learners. There are some students who are unable to read or write, so Teacher Judith calls them one at a time to her table and assigns them an assignment that will help them learn these skills and make some progress. I also see how the parents and teachers interact with each other, and I've noticed that the parents have willingness to help clean the classroom even if the instructor doesn't explicitly ask them to do so. Perhaps parents express their gratitude to the teacher in this way because they are aware of how challenging teaching a child can be.
