

Air pollution may be due to a lot of factors. First, we can be polluted by harmful gases from vehicles, factory gas emissions, and pollution from natural resources such as volcanic eruptions or forest fires. These factors are largely influenced by industrialization and urbanization, evident in urbanized towns and cities with more to maintain government supervision and regulation. Thus, people's lack of concern for the environment has caused more for regulations to protect our natural resources. Thus, we know that could have caused the air quality, the government's existing lack of accountability in terms of enforcing laws that protect the environment has caused the air quality to be a major factor. While these three suggest suggestions for clean air in the future, we will help ourselves of the need for climate action to have this action.
