Our professor always said that teaching is a noblest profession. And they are right! During my 3-day observation period in Caranglaan Elementary School it gives me opportunity and realized that teaching is not an easy job. It requires full of dedication, love and compassion on the profession and the learners. Dedicated in a sense that, teachers have the ability to inspire the students through their approaches, actions, and even through the lessons or activities they engage in.

This is the second time of my observation. I've learned some strategies that my cooperating teacher used for teaching. One of those things is she used real life context which is the students can relate to the lesson. Another thing is the integration of technology, she used technology to motivate the students and to provide the learning process. I've also gained a knowledge how my cooperating teacher act in a way of professionalism. But sometimes she can't control her emotions. She manages the classroom quite well for having twenty- three students, all of whom need individual attention. Because most of the students can't read and can't understand mother tongue language. She need it to translate in second language which is "tagalog". Her classroom is not conducive environment because lack of fan and learning materials which is the student can't learn well. But one thing that I amazed is she bought a speaker to provide the needs of her students because the sounds of her laptop was low. In addition, the teacher and students relationship within the room is amazing and also the relationship between the teachers and the parents. I've also notice during the instruction, answers that were correct were praised in specific way. After the discussion the students have an activity to answer and she record their score. She used the activity as a assessment tool for their learning. She is also exhibit fairness of the students. One time the student cry because she accidentally hurt by her classmates but before teacher takes sides of the students hurt she put herself in the shoes of the students that will hurt. The student unintentionally hurt by her classmate that's why teacher Sheryl said that she will apologize to her classmate. I saw how she discipline her students in politely way.

Teaching is not only a job it comes with so much responsibility and duty towards students. And not only the students, also the parents, colleagues and the community. In may 3-day observation I saw how hard of being teacher is but if you have a heart in teaching you can be the best teacher you are. You will become selfless just like teacher Sheryl.
