

FIELD STUDY 6
Deployment Narrative Report

Name: Chris Angelo C. Gamboa Year & Section: 3rd Year - BEED3-01
School Assigned: West Central Elementary School II
Date of Deployment: February 27 - March 1
Cooperating Teacher: Mrs. Irene F. Transfiguracion
Grades & Sections observed: Grade 1 – Rizal

If you are a teacher, the learning will never end. And it is something that you must to be proud of. Because all of those learnings will be the instrument for you to be able to share, give and provide the best quality of education that your learners should have. As a student teaching, it is the time of trial and error, for growing confidence and developing expertise. It is not a time of perfection but of striving for competence. And you must first appreciate the value of continuous learning because this is the teachers' tool for developing students into better, more competitive individuals.

During the Feb. 27 to March 1, I was able to observe in school of West Central II. These were 1st grade and the teacher in charge was Mrs. Irene. During her classes I could observe that she is very confident and assertive. When she is in front of the class, she shows herself in control and she is always ready to be sweet and strict. When it comes to the community or the stakeholders, I don't have any negative comments to them because based on what I have seen/experienced they are accommodating and kind. Dr. Jennifer Festejo, the principal of the school is very professional, from her actions, posture, and presence; you will see and know that she is really the mother of the school. The grade 1 students, all I can say is they are nasty and noisy but I was amazed on they soft hearted and their eagerness to learn. Just like what they have said "Sir chris game na, basa na po tayo" and I felt overwhelmed every time they are voluntary approaching me like that. And the environment itself wasn't totally good because of tight space but I appreciate the cleanliness and those students that have initiative to clean or pick up those clutter/dirt which they can see and pass through. I have a lot of realization about in teaching and learning process, and I have seen the real world of teaching especially in elementary grades that your company are kids or children's. I have also learned to appreciate how students' behavior, the different approach and strategy that my Cooperating Teacher used. I also salute about having the ethics of my cooperating teacher, keeping on their mind like "Never hurt your students even how angry or frustrated you are because of their behavior". On how you conduct an assessment that is appropriate for their interest and in managing the classroom properly. I feel amazed on her classroom management, having a different strategy about it and some examples is that she has a signals or gesture such as the number 1 to 7 (I already forgot the meaning of every number, sorry for that) and the 123 zip where in the students will zip their mouth. And I realized how important of having like that because it will make easy for you to manage the behavior of your learners.

PPST – Domain 3: Diversity of learners, my CT uses a different approach and

FIELD STUDY 6
Deployment Narrative Report

techniques in presenting their lesson so that every learner can learn through their interest. Under PPST – Domain 7: Personal Growth and Professional Development, where in my CT relationship with her fellow teacher is nice, they are totally close, feels like they are real family and I also saw that she showed professionalism to them. Code of ethics – Article III section 1 which I noticed that she encouraged her students to think independently about on a variety of question, that will tap their metacognition. And also giving an assessment that students need to complete and helping each student with their work. Based on what I have seen with their classroom environment, I don't have any problem with it, actually I am very happy because it always looks clean and fresh also having an enough fan for all students. And this will tap the PPST – Domain 2: Learning environment. I also observed about the Code of ethics - Article IX section 2 which is my cooperating teacher informing the parents of her learners about the learnings of their child, on what are their improvement and progression during their class. Above all, our relationship as her student observer, I am speechless with her actions and attitude, my CT is very kind to me, giving some realization and advice for me to use as my weapon to succeed on this profession. And I really appreciate when she keeps saying that soon I will also be one of the professional teachers. So, I would like to thank you with her knowledge that she shared to me.

As we all know, teaching is a mobile profession. It requires a long preparation and more training sessions for us to be equipped in facing the real environment. Students teaching serves as an internship in the profession education where theories, knowledge, attitudes, and skills develop through course work and observation are fused into more meaningful interpretation through practical experience in actual teaching situations. So, as a future professional teacher, I know that we will experience a different problem or a lot of challenges and struggles but I will always keep to my promise that whatever will happen, I will pursue this and be one of the professional teachers. And once I am on the field, I will do everything, whatever strategies, methods, or approach is that I will give, share, and provide the best quality of education that the learners should have and get. To end this narrative report, I just want to say that “teaching is not a job, it is a mission.”