As an education student pursuing her ambition of one day becoming an outstanding teacher, I have seen a lot of things throughout my observation period at West Central Elementary School 2 that have inspired me. I gained a lot of knowledge about classroom management, how to evaluate students' learning, and how to interact with various student types.

A flag ceremony was held on Monday, February 27, 2023, which is my first day. I was given responsibility for Ma'am Eloisa Valerio a Grade 2 adviser, on that particular day. As I walked into their classroom. I could immediately sense how wonderful of an environment it is for the kids who are studying there. I attribute this to the positive classroom environment and the teacher's commitment to never leaving a student behind. Because a teacher tries to accommodate each student's demands in order for them to go forward as they explore different lessons. The teacher frequently uses visual aids when instructing the students, and I can state that this is helpful because it encourages engagement and active participation on the side of the students. For me, using pencil and paper as a writing tool while kids are being assessed for their learning is one of the best ways to help them develop their writing abilities, and also Teacher Eloisa made the children spell to find out if the children really learned from their previous lesson. On my second day, February 28, 2023, I was in fact overtaken by circumstances that had not occurred on my first day. Since the children are already familiar with the alphabet and its sounds, I was impressed by their performance. Also, students completed a reading exercise that required them to read aloud repeatedly in order to demonstrate their proficiency in reading. Once the afternoon session started, I was already watching the class as the teacher used integrated technology to facilitate successful teaching and learning. They can put their answers straight on the paper without having to worry about copying the complete question in their papers because teacher Eloisa gave everyone of her students a printed copy of their assessment. And when they answer what teacher Eloisa said, they checked it instantly. The final day of my observation, March 1, 2023, is coming. Like on my first day, Teacher Eloisa made use of visual aids, which is a really effective way to help the student visualize the lesson. Similar to what they did that day when they also had a story telling. The story-telling process went smoothly since teacher Eloisa's excellent storytelling abilities captured the students' attention. Then the reading time came, students got to perform their reading loudly repeatedly while doing what teacher Eloisa instructed them to do. After their class, Teacher Eloisa thanked me because I can watch the children when she has something to do or needs to go for a while.
